this take anything away from the Joplin area," said Mills. "The answer is no. Everyone will be decided on a case by case basis. Everyone is unique. It's very unlikely that two different people would get the same amount of assistance, just because their structures are different, with different materials."

Registration may be completed online at www.disasterassistance.gov, by smartphone through m.fema.gov, or by calling FEMA's toll-free registration line at 1-800-621-3362. If the applicant has a speech disability or hearing loss and uses a TTY, call 1-800-462-7585 directly, or if the applicant uses 711 or video relay service, call 1-800-621-3362. Telephone registration is daily from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. until further notice, according to FEMA.

Disaster assistance may include grants to help pay for temporary housing, home repair, and other serious disaster-related expenses not covered by insurance or other sources.

The U.S. Small Business Administration also has a deadline of July 29 for submitting disaster loan application packets. The SBA provides low-interest loans to cover the uncompensated losses for personal contents up to $40,000 for both homeowners and renters and up to $200,000 for homeowners for physical damage to their primary residence.

The SBA also provides low-interest loans up to $2 million for uncompensated physical losses suffered by businesses of any size and private non-profit organizations. Additionally, working capital loans are available for economic injuries sustained by small businesses in the declared counties and the adjoining counties.

The combination of the two business loans cannot exceed $2 million. For information about SBA programs, call 1-800-659-2955 or TTY 1-800-877-8339.

Assistance for affected individuals and families can include, as required:

- Rental payments for temporary housing for those whose homes are unlivable.
- Grants for home repairs and replacement of essential household items not covered by insurance to make damaged dwellings safe, sanitary and functional.
- Grants to replace personal property and help meet medical, dental, funeral, transportation and other serious disaster-related needs not covered by insurance and other aid programs.
- Unemployment payments up to 26 weeks for workers who temporarily lost jobs because of the disaster and who do not qualify for state benefits, such as self-employed individuals.
- Low-interest loans to cover residential losses not fully compensated by insurance.
- Loans up to $2 million for small businesses, small agricultural cooperatives and most private, non-profit organizations of all sizes that have suffered disaster-related cash flow problems and need funds for working capital to recover from the disaster's adverse economic impact.
- Loans up to $500,000 for farmers, ranchers, and aquaculture operators to cover production and property losses, excluding primary residence.
- Other relief programs: crisis counseling for those traumatized by the disaster, income tax assistance for filing casualty losses; advisory assistance for legal, veterans' benefits and social security matters.

pound person is thanking God that the one store in town with plus size clothing now has a size 28. The 150-pound person doesn't have diabetes or high blood pressure. The 300-pound person has both. What could these individuals have in common?

The lies. They have the lies in common.

I have some big "untruths" from my own weight loss struggles. I've also added a few more from those I've had the opportunity to meet and mentor. It doesn't seem to matter how many diets you've been on. It doesn't matter how much weight you need to lose. At our very core, we all have struggles.

We are willing to believe the worst about our character when we are weak. When we fail and give into temptations, we start to believe that trying again is a waste of time. We question why God would bother to love us at all. These lies can bring us to our knees in hopelessness if left to run wild in our minds. Are any of these big lies hiding in the small corners of your brain?

Ten Big Whoppers (we're talking lies not the candy)

1. I'm just too busy to spend time exercising or cooking healthy food.
2. It's selfish to focus my time on getting healthy. Our family schedule is just too busy.
3. Trying to lose weight is pointless. When has it ever worked before?
4. Obesity runs in my family. It's just the way we are, and I'll always be fat.
5. "Skinny" people have more self-control and discipline than I have.
6. If I cut back on the foods I love, my life is going to be miserable.
7. My size isn't really that unhealthy. I look good carrying the extra pounds and it doesn't bother me at all. This is also called "my man likes my curves!"

8. I'm on medications that make it hard to lose weight. I also have a bad back, bad knees, bad feet, etc.

9. I work hard and now it's time to celebrate. I deserve a little treat.

10. I can't live forever so eat, drink and be merry.

Make your own list. Read it and read it again. The lies may be as comfortable to you as an old pair of shoes. Maybe you've lived with them as constant companions for years. My big lies were #3, #6 and #9 on the list. And just like an old pair of shoes, they gave me no support and had a definite stink when I examined them too closely.

Next week, we're going to talk about what to do with the lies hiding in the dark corners of your mind. Bring your flashlight. We're going to hunt those suckers down with the bright light of the truth.

In the meantime, start a weight loss plan in the heat of summer if you feel ready. There is a chance, however, that you have some work to do before you start to lose weight.

That's OK. One random day in October is also a very fine date to begin your healthy journey. See you next week!

Linda Goff lives in Rolla with her husband Dan and two sons. She hosts a weekly talk show on the Christian Television Network and speaks with groups on the subject of healthy weight loss.

Linda topped the scales at more than 300 pounds in 2007 when she took her final "before" picture and slowly lost 155-pounds.

She has been featured in Prevention Magazine and on the syndicated television program The Doctors. To learn more, visit www.beforemeetsafter.org.

HOW CAN PEOPLE BECOME DOG PARTNERS?

"Contact the American Red Cross," Kelly said. People interested in becoming dog partners and making their dogs therapy dogs can contact the Red Cross at 596-0300. The dogs and their owners go through a three-day evaluation of the dog's temperament and how the owner handles the dog. The process is done locally.

I AM INSPIRED BY "Trying to make a difference with my own children as well as the kids in my classroom," Kelly said.

I BELIEVE Kelly says she believes, "that there is good in every person. Dig deep enough, you'll find it." She says she also believes, "Everything happens for a reason and that's why I am where I am."

FAVORITE QUOTE Kelly says her favorite quote is the words of every mother of children, "If you weren't fooling around, that wouldn't have happened."

SPC Anthony Wilson is just the type of patient that Lela and Kelly visit the hospital to see. Wilson is just one of many patients who smiled when they saw the black labrador retriever coming.

UNPAID

tremely aggressive when collecting on a bill and often people find themselves owing up to double what their bill was originally.

People can also find themselves in court with their wages garnished if a collection agency becomes involved in an unpaid bill.

There are 980 delinquent accounts totaling $286,942.28.

Individual balances range from $0.01 to $32,073.95.

Most of the unpaid bills are smaller amounts. In fact the bills don't get up over $500 until the 14th page of the 16-page bill summary provided by Clark's office to the board.

The majority of the ones over $500 are businesses and business owners.

Many of the businesses went out of business, filed bankruptcy, or both, which makes it more difficult to collect on those unpaid bills.

There are a few businesses that are still operating in the area that have an unpaid bill such as the $32,073.95 owed by a restaurant in the St. Robert area.

The top five unpaid bills are over $5,000.

Two of the top five are over $9,000.

If the top five bills were paid in full, the city would recoup $65,055.56.

If the top 10 bills were paid in full, the city would recoup $78,199.83.

The board finally agreed to excuse the clerk's office from the inactive utility accounts and check into handing them over to a collection agency.
