PULASKI COUNTY SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT

Evidence room in better condition

New system gets installed, room organized

Michael Misfeldt Staff Writer

When Pulaski County Sheriff J. B. King took over as sheriff, the evidence room was in a shambles, he said. Boxes were mislabeled, stuff thrown about on shelves, evidence had to be looked for. That is no longer the case since Dianne Hayden took over as evidence room technician two years ago, he not-

They now have a bar coding system in place, everything is labeled and put where it is supposed to be and if you need to find something all you have to do is type it in the computer and you will know where to look, he pointed out.

"Î initially got involved with the evidence room because my husband was the deputy that got shot a few years back," said Hayden. computer to locate or "Once he got back to work, I shelve items makes the was helping him in the evidence room because he really couldn't write that well yet, so J.B. authorized me to help him out, so I got involved in that a little bit helping him. And then we got the fulltime grant to hire a civilian and I was interested in the iob. I already knew how to do it and I was trained for it."

The job of an evidence room tech is to keep all evidence tagged, categorized, put away, and to bring it up to court if needed.

"Before I got here the deputies would just bring it down to the evidence room and leave it on the desk or put it on a shelf," said Hayden. "Now if they don't have the proper documentation on it, I won't even take it until all the forms are filled out correctly."

Besides redoing the evidence room, Hayden also has made sure that all fulltime road deputies also have a complete investigation kit with them in their cars so that evidence can be labeled correctly and handled while out on the field.

"We have what I call an evidence table, that was donated by Wayne Gifford, out in the main area so that deputies have something to set their evidence on when bagging it or to fill out their forms on," said Hayden. "Before, they were having to do all of this on the trunk of their squad cars."

Hayden was hired through a grant that will expire in December but King said that they have enough money in other funds to keep Hayden on past that date.

"I don't know what we would have done if she hadn't taken the time to fix and organize that room," said King. "She has done a remarkable job and I will make sure that she is able to stay on past the grant date."

Hayden has been able to make life a little easier for the deputies and for the courts themselves by making it easier to find the evidence that they are looking for and by making sure that the chain of custody is not broken and remains intact, King said.

"I know I would feel awful if for some reason a person was able to get off because of that will not happen," said a mistake I made in the evidence room, so I make sure items, non-perishable spaghetti sauce, noodles, juices and things like salad dressing.

The food pantry provides food to clients in need under several programs, not just the commodities program.

These programs include one for seniors and another for emergencies, as well as other programs.

Hurlbutt would like to invite local gardeners who find themselves with an excess of produce from their gardens to consider donating the excess to the food pantry.

In an effort to help the community and the Good Samaritan Food Pantry, the Daily Guide is sponsoring a food drive.

Anyone willing to donate is encouraged to drop off any food item they wish to donate at the Daily Guide office located at 108 Holly Drive behind St. Robert Fit-

The Daily Guide will be taking donations beginning Monday, July 11 and ending Friday July 15.

For more information please contact the Daily Guide office between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. at 336-3711.
